From the Fairways – Low Input Turf

As you well know, we have been challenged in the past years to adopt more cost effective programs on the golf course. When we look at our inputs on the golf course, and how we spend money/labor, it is important to gauge how reductions in inputs will affect the condition of the course. Fortunately, the change to bentgrass is helpful as it requires substantially less input than Poa annua, and we get the most bang for our buck on large swards of turf like fairways.

Reductions in water and fertilizer on our fairways have allowed us to reduce mowing frequency by 33%. Not only does this save on labor, it saves fuel and wear/tear on our equipment. It has also allowed us to use fewer fungicides than in prior years; this again is partially due to the lack of Poa annua and the presence of bentgrass. We in the turf industry use the phrase “lean and mean” as it relates to managing stands of bent with minimal input, and this is one of the major philosophies we have adopted.

How does this affect conditions? During times of persistent rain, especially in the spring, there is little difference that you may notice. In the summer and throughout the fall, especially during dry periods, the turf will grow slowly will not often have a lush, green look to it. However, I will argue that color is not a condition. If we can get past the issue of color, it is easy to see that the actual condition of the turf is better when it is not overwatered and over fertilized.

If you have any questions regarding the golf course, please do not hesitate to contact me at 847.304.2840 or bmcgargill@wynstone.org.

Once again I would like to thank all of the participants from last month's Wynstone Cup Matches. Gorgeous weather graced us both days for tournament play, and with the golf course in fantastic condition some great golf was played.

At the conclusion of tournament play, the flight winners took part in the Champions Shoot-Out to determine the 2017 Wynstone Cup Matches Champion. The esteemed title goes to the First Flight winners Michael Pesch and Bob Quinn with a birdie on the eighteenth. Please help me congratulate all of our flight winners and runner-ups.

2018 Monday Outing Dates – Book Now

Wynstone Golf Club offers a variety of packages for Monday Outings during the months of May, June, July, August and September. Typically events/organizations will re-book for the following year the day of their event, stating “This is the best place for us, you guys have the best show in town.” With the season in full swing, this is a great time to look to the future and get your date booked and confirmed for 2018, these prime dates go fast. For further information regarding Monday Outings please contact Cory Brownell, Head Golf Professional.

Destination Kohler

I am happy to announce Wynstone Golf Club will once again be partnering with our friends at Kohler in the weeks ahead to offer our members an unparalleled opportunity to play one of the greatest golf courses in the world. Whistling Straits is an experience unlike any other here in the states, you would surely have to travel over the pond to encounter anything similar.

If that is not enough, throw in Blackwolf Run’s River Course, a true test of golf melded into the Sheboygan River Valley, its natural beauty is remarkable and it’s hard to believe you are just minutes from the windswept sand dunes of Whistling Straits. Stay tuned for further details and travel dates.
I would like to remind all that our Golf Instruction Program now has its own page in the Club’s website (click on the GOLF tab). I will continue to add great golf content to the Wynstone golf instruction website page on a weekly basis. Included is access to my own website, Facebook and Twitter accounts - all providing plenty of golf news, tips and videos as well. Designed and maintained by yours truly, it is now your go-to for ALL Wynstone adult & junior instruction program offerings & details!

From Dan’s website blog...

“Your golf swing: What you feel isn’t always real…what you see is!”

One of the most perplexing aspects of the game we all love is this: What we feel we are doing and what we are actually doing are generally not even close to the same thing in golf. I can’t tell you how many golfers over the years I have seen and/or worked with who think they are doing something, but are actually doing something else. It’s not unique to average golfers, either; it’s the same for the best golfers, too. This is where video and launch monitors are so effective. To start this process, you need to schedule a video lesson with me. Unless you can actually see your movements and read the impact and flight measurements, you cannot ever actually know what you’re doing. You, me or Tiger, it doesn’t matter.

Here are some of the reasons why what you think you’re doing isn’t what you’re actually doing:

1. Ball flight is misleading. Anytime you can swing a club to the left and have the ball go to the right… or swing the club to the right and have the ball go left, we are in for a world of deception. The flight of the golf ball is such a powerful feedback that it will dictate our every motion.

2. Motion habits are deeply entrenched. Once the golf swing develops, it is very hard to change it.

3. Path of least resistance. Let’s face it; it’s a human trait to choose the easiest, most comfortable way to do something. Most times, that means accepting their current swing errors because it’s easier to do so than make change.

4. Pre-conceived notions. Many golfers come for their first lesson with an innate conceptualization of their flaws or what’s wrong with their game — but they’re often wrong, making those pre-conceived notions detrimental to their swing.

The best… actually the ONLY way I have seen golfers combat this phenomenon is to practice doing entirely opposite of what they THINK they’re doing. Let’s say we look at the video and it shows you are raising up on you take away, coming out of your posture. I suggest you actually try to feel as though you’re going down on the backswing; feel as though you are lowering your posture going back. Then check again to see if you actually made a change. If not, try again and this time dip a LOT in the backswing until you can internalize a feeling of actually not raising up. Read more at www.danhansengolf.com
